

Polymer optical fibres for car area networks.

This project (in collaboration with Jaguar Land Rover) will investigate the limits of high speed optical communications using polymer optical fibres. Car area networks have a requirement for multi-GBit/s operation over distances of tens of metres. Other parameters to be explored are temperature sensitivity, bend tolerance and environmental susceptibility to mechanical shock and noise.